1. Simple English: Helen Keller says that she has often thought that it would be the best way to live each day as if we were going to die the very next day. This type of thinking and approach would highlight the very values of life. We should try to lead each day of life in a gentle way. In order to understand life and its values, we must be energetic and enthusiastic. But the sorrowful thing is that we do not bother to live such a life when we realize that we will live so many years. There are many people who follow the epicurean philosophy. That philosophy is just to eat, drink and be happy. On the other hand, most of the people are frightened and become holy as they are certain that they would die one day.

2. Simple English: We often study in the stories that the accursed hero is usually saved at the critical moment by some lucky incident. But such an incident often makes the hero change his feelings of assessment of others. Then he starts understanding better the worth of life and its endless sacred values. It has been observed that the people who have faced or seen death closely, often become very sweet and kind-hearted. They exhibit this sweetness in all their dealings.

8. Simple English: The author says that she will not waste even a single moment in yearning if she should see this thing or that thing. She says that she dedicated the first day of her sight to her living or non living friends. The second day exposed to her the history of man and Nature. But she intends to spend the third day of her sight in visiting ordinary places of the practical world of today. Therefore, she will go to the places often visited by people where she will see the people with their routine business. She questions where one can find such things. Then she answers that New York is the place where all these things can be found. There she would observe so many human activities and affairs of life. Thus, New York will become her goal.

Notes and Comments:

Helen Keller, (1880-1968) after an illness was left blind and deaf at the age of 19 months. At the age of seven years, Anne Sullivan took charge of her. She was a 20 years old graduate of the Perkins School for the blind. Helen Keller's formal education ended when she received her BA degree, but throughout her life she continued to study. There are many publications to her credit. During her life time, she received awards of great distinction. She showed the world that there are no boundaries to courage and faith.

Writing Skills

A. Write what the author means by saying "the seeing see little". Explain in a paragraph.

Ans. It is generally observed that those who are blessed with eye-sight do not value this gift. Very often a thing lies under their feet They pass by them many times. The next moment, they start searching for it and show great concern about it. The author also had a friend who came to her after a long walk in the woods. The author asked her what she had seen there. Her friend told her that nothing was in particular. She was not shocked because she had got accustomed to such responses. That's why; she says "the seeing, see little" because they do not value their eye-sight. They cast a casual clance at every thing. They pass unnoticed by many things.

B. What is the "Epicurean motto?" Discuss.

ای کور س موثو کیا ہے؟ بحث کریں۔ Ans. The epicurean motto is "Eat drink and be merry for tomorrow you die." These people do not believe in life after death. To them, life in this world is every thing. They think that after death, they will not be raised alive. The only chance for them to enjoy life is in this world. So they want to make best us of this opportunity. This is the meaning of epicurean motto.

C. Write a paragraph on the difficulties of a special child. بيش يح ك شكات يرير اكرالكسين-Ans. A special child is always different from common children. He is deprived of any one of the ability i.e. Hearing or Seeing. So he is in a great difficulty. The child deprived of hearing has to depend upon others to tell him through the use of their gestures. It is a fact that the one who is deprived of hearing is also unable to speak. So he faces great difficulty. In the same way, the child deprived of eyes has to depend upon others to watch and tell him about the panorama of nature spreading all around. He has to use his imagination and sense of hearing to draw results. Same is the case with other children deprived of any other capacity.
